Workers

The worker bees or wasps in a colony do lots of different jobs.

Some workers take care of the queen. They feed and clean her.

These worker honey bees are cleaning the queen's body with their front legs.

Workers mend holes in the nest. They make it bigger, too.

They keep the nest safe by guarding the entrance.

If the nest gets hot, they fan in cool air with their wings.

When it's cold, they huddle together to warm up the nest.
