

SECTION 1 ADAPTING TO SURVIVE

Using bushes for cover, Super Scientist Max Axiom begins his adventures in adaptation from his own backyard.

I'm always amazed by the wonders of nature.

For the animals that live here, my backyard serves as their habitat.

It provides the food, water, and shelter they need to survive.

But just being where there's food and water isn't enough.

Survival is a full-time job.

In fact, plants and animals depend on many unique features to survive and reproduce.

These features are known as adaptations.